Full of Eastern Promise

Ipswich Conference 2011

Welcome to Ipswich 2011.

England's oldest Anglo-Saxon town, with medieval streets and architectural gems such as "Ancient House" dating back to the 14th Century to Sir Norman Foster's Willis Corroon building. Medieval churches, green open spaces to allow plenty of walking and places to relax.

Christchurch Park is home to a fine Tudor mansion, housing the most important collection of work by artists John Constable and Thomas Gainsborough.

At Orwell Country Park enjoy great views of the estuary and the Orwell Bridge. Ipswich has a rich maritime heritage. Its port was founded in the 6/7th century, and the wet dock has undergone a huge exciting renaissance, with waterfront bars, restaurants, marina and cruises down the river on the Orwell Lady.

Or why not just take a walk into the heart of Ipswich you will be pleasantly surprised by the old and the new?

To those who wish to see more we have Constable Country, Dedham, Flatford Mill, Lavenham, the famous Sutton Hoo and Woodbridge.

Ipswich has so much to offer that is why National Conference 2011 is "Full of Eastern Promise"

Ian Mackenzie
Ipswich 2011 Chairman

I do hope to see you in Ipswich in 2011 for what I know will be a great conference. Ian and the team are working hard on our behalf: all we need to do is to turn up in large numbers and enjoy the party.

See you in the Kasbah!

Malcolm
National President 2010-2011

Join me in a weekend of friendship and fun, meeting friends old and new. There is no better place than Conference 2011 in Ipswich. Attend the NAGM and luncheon, then stay Saturday night to toast the end of another Tangent year during which we have celebrated Tangent's 40th charter
